

© 1997–2004, Millennium Mathematics Project, University of Cambridge.

Permission is granted to print and copy this page on paper for non-commercial use. For other uses, including electronic redistribution, please contact us.

November 2003

Features

Imaging maths – Unfolding polyhedra

The catenoid is a minimal surface with "too much" negative curvature. Therefore, the unfolding consists of more than one planar component.

Back to the article

Plus is part of the family of activities in the Millennium Mathematics Project, which also includes the NRICH and MOTIVATE sites.