

© 1997–2009, Millennium Mathematics Project, University of Cambridge.

Permission is granted to print and copy this page on paper for non-commercial use. For other uses, including electronic redistribution, please contact us.

December 2007

Features

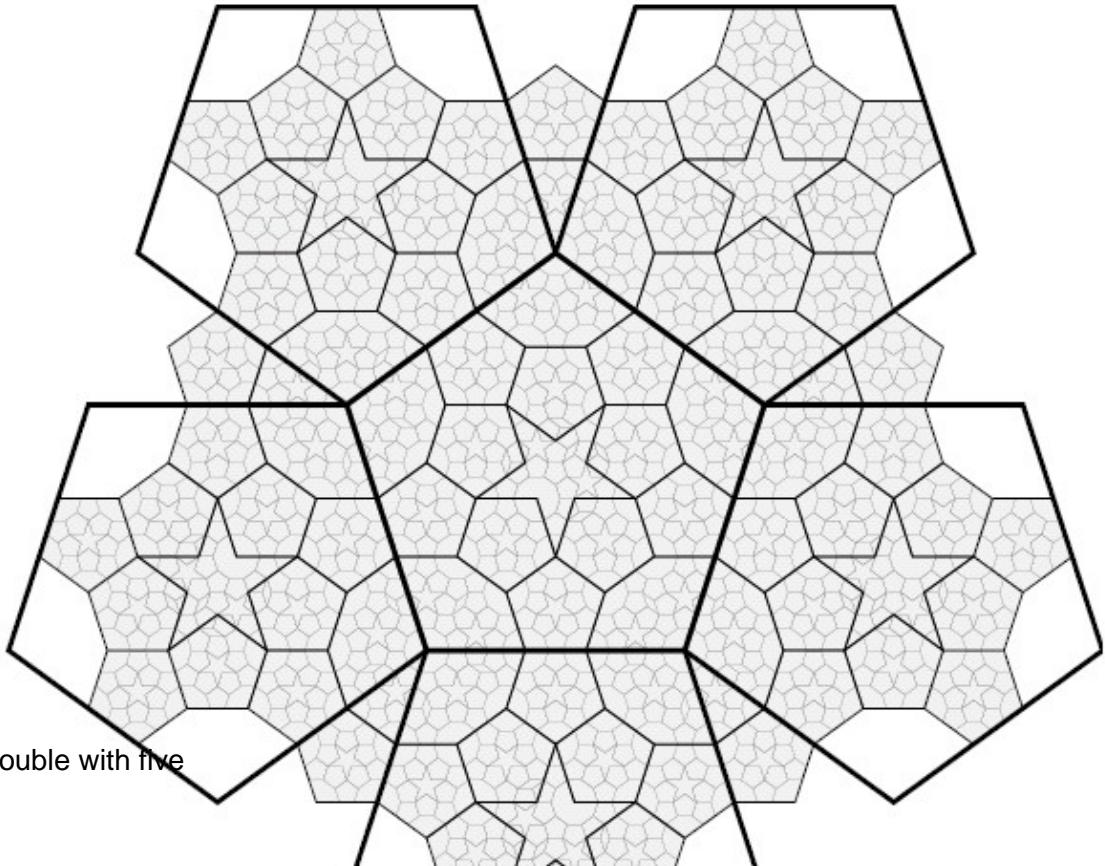

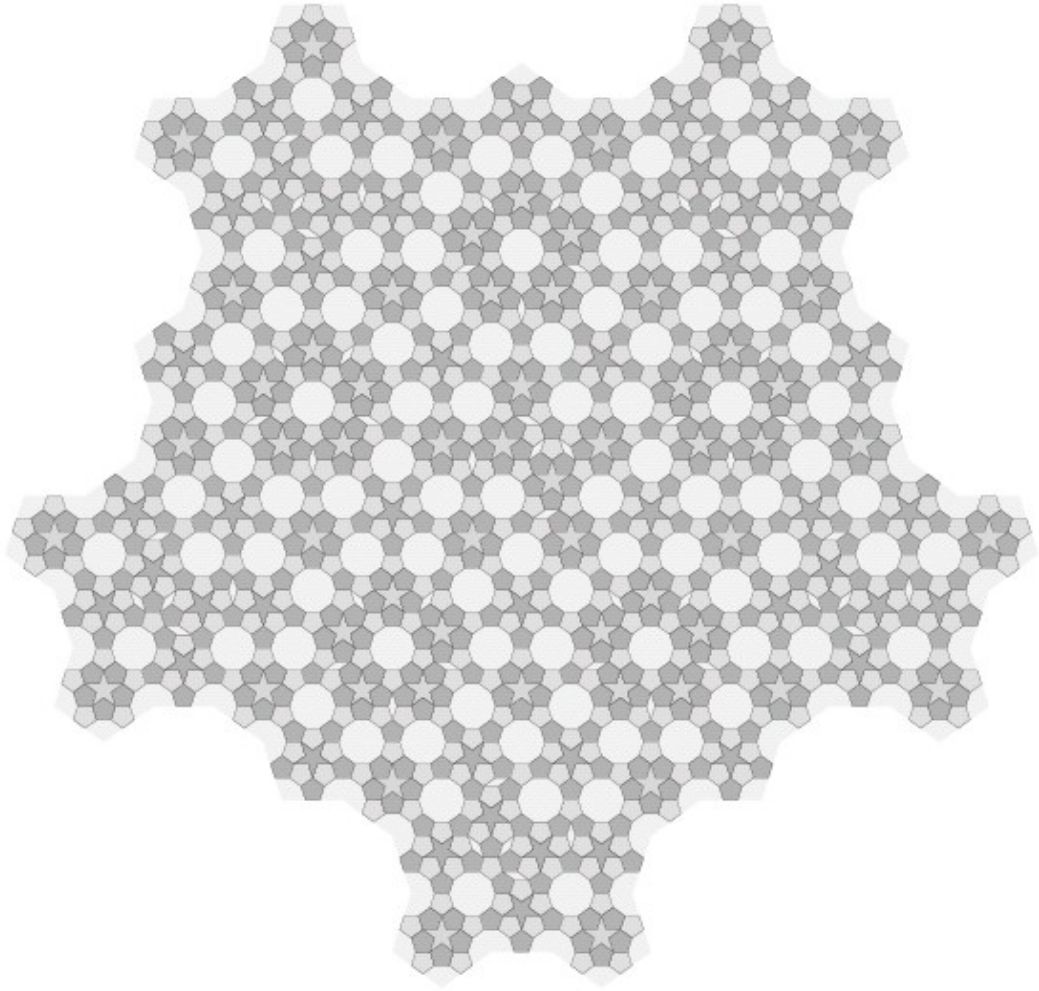

The trouble with five

by Craig Kaplan

The trouble with five

The trouble with five

Figure 14: A small part of a tiling produced from pentagons and rhombi via two applications of the substitution rules in figure 13. The bottom diagram shows the relationships between tiles at all levels of substitution.

Back to the article

Plus is part of the family of activities in the Millennium Mathematics Project, which also includes the NRICH and MOTIVATE sites.